¹ Kash Flow, "Benefits Of Having An Accountant" Article

Focusing on your next goal is a burdensome task. The weight of current obligations can hinder your ability to adequately plan for the future. Leveraging our accounting services can free your schedule allowing you to focus on what really matters: Growth

Business owners often have the misconception that they cannot afford to have their CPA further involved in the conclusions of their business decisions. Accountants will most likely save their client's time, money, and assist in the growth of the company. In reality, an accountant is qualified as a consultant; with the assistance of a team, a CPA can deliver assurance that your business thrives and sustains through economic hardships.¹

DID YOU KNOW

Some of the most common errors a new business owner makes are:

- Improperly choosing or continuing to use an entity which you have outgrown
 - S Corp, C Corp, LLC, Partnership, LLP, LP, etc.
- Withholding payroll taxes inadequately.
- Improperly recording transactions regularly and accurately.
- Improperly creating a Chart of Accounts.
- Choosing the learning curve technique over attaining professional assistance for imperative business decisions when necessary.
